

Ukraine

With the invasion by Russia of Ukraine just four weeks old it was obvious that in the last two weeks there would be some mention of this issue. The European Union as a group loudly condemned Russia's invasion as well as most European countries speaking individually. In fact, most of the developed countries were very critical of Russia. The developing countries kept quiet on the issue.

All these countries, who criticised Russia, spoke of the bravery of all the women fleeing to Poland with their children, and how dangerous it was for them. There was a deafening silence about all the brave Ukrainian men who stayed behind to fight the great Russian bear. Not a single country mentioned them in the whole two-week meeting. I am disgusted by this silence. The men of Ukraine are giving their lives to protect their country and all these feminists could not care less.

There is a related area , as mentioned by Dr. Farrell , that men account for 93% of workplace deaths. When women join the US military, hardly any die. They are protected by the men. I was taught as a young man that I should be willing to serve in the military if needed. I accepted this as it made sense. The men did the dying to protect their loved ones.

In 1991 after the fall of the USSR there was a naïve assumption that there would be no more wars. However Jesus said “ You will hear of wars and rumours of war...” Mt. 24:6, and sadly that is the case. Please pray for peace in Ukraine.
