Event information

The purpose of this discussion panel is to glean from different perspectives on how to deal with issues that have developed as a result of postmodern thought. Within the realm of secular society, many executives, business owners, and employees find themselves in positions where they feel forced to conform to radical social changes within their work environment. Gender identity, sexual harassment, and 'woke' culture are topics that stand in the fore front of recent changes within society. As a result, increasing pressure is placed on individuals to conform to non-traditional viewpoints. These and similar questions will be addressed by our panelists with a focus on the business environment:

1. What legislation in New Jersey can affect the Religious Freedoms that are important to schools and business owners?
2. Explain how our culture went from endorsing traditional Biblical values to where we are today where there is so much pressure against those values.
3. What are schools and businesses doing today to try to protect themselves from litigation related to gender issues?
4. Name some resources available to schools and businesses to help stay informed about gender related laws and policies.

Reception Timeline

7:30 - Appetizers

8:00 - Panel Discussion

8:45 - Presentation by Henk Jan Van Schothorst

9:00 Congressman Chris Smith - (invited and to be confirmed)

9:15 - Meet and Greet with panelists

Coffee and Dessert

By viewing the topics through the lens of the business environment, this panel will provide relevant information to those who might be dealing with these types of situations in their workplace. CCI will provide a presentation to show how the organization can provide support to business owners in actively seeking out policy negotiations to ensure that personal freedoms are not infringed upon, or neglected in any way.

There is no cost of attendance for this reception. Donations toward the different projects of Christian Council International would be greatly appreciated.
